

This vivid illustration by Suryaa Rangarajan shows what real climate solutions mean for communities in South Asia: securing their land-based livelihoods, strengthening access and governance over their natural resource commons, of which they have been custodians for generations, and enabling decentralised and clean energy.

